

"We need to know our site is secure 24/7 and that's particularly important during the night and at weekends. It's reassuring to know that DCL Security's highly trained security guards are on site – every night."

John Morrison, Operations Manager, J R Adam & Sons

The DCL Security team have built up significant experience of providing security services to the recycling and scrap metal sector. This is a challenging sector, every week an estimated 1,000 metal thefts occur and figures estimate that metal theft costs the UK economy as much as £770 million annually. In this context, it is no surprise that clients need expert security partners to protect their premises.

JR Adam & Sons specialises in the processing of ferrous and non ferrous metals. They have a significant range of plant, equipment and vehicles to deal with the volume of materials processing that takes place, from shredders that can produce 500mt of shredded scrap a day to cranes and balers as well as a modern fleet of vehicles that transports materials. The JR Adams team chose DCL Security because they knew we could offer a high standard of service that they could rely on. In a sector that is plagued with challenges, it was critical that they could establish a security resource they could trust.

Malcolm Construction is one of the leading operators of landfill services in Scotland and last year handled more than 1.1 million tonnes of waste at its operational landfill sites. Having established a successful partnership with the Malcolm Group at several logistics depots, it was a natural extension to the partnership when the Malcolms team needed expert Security Guards at their recycling site.

"We have worked with the DCL Security team for several years and we know we can trust their quality of service. Their standards are high and their customer focus means that we can rely on them to protect our sites."

Alan Linklater, Quality Assurance Manager, Malcolm Group

Robertson Metals is another well known scrap metal merchant who provides expert services in most types of ferrous and non-ferrous metals, throughout the UK. With a significant volume of processing and movement of materials they needed a security partner who could protect their assets, every day.

"We are delighted with the service we receive from DCL Security, they understand the challenge of protecting our service and it's great to work with a partner who has such a strong customer focus."
